

Freefalling – by: Jeanetta Anderson

I used to measure my worth by my deeds
Knew the law to the letter, knew all the creeds
Used my own rope to pull myself to the top
But just when I'd get there I'd feel myself drop
Still I would cling trying to gain control
Till one day you said to me "Just let go"
My grace is sufficient I'm all you need
It's not about you it's all about me"

I wrestled my whole life was a victim of lies
Couldn't find peace no matter how hard I tried Looked for acceptance but never fit in
Couldn't let go of the guilt from my sin
So I'd pull away feeling desperately low
'Till one day you said to me "Just let go"
The price has been paid by the blood that I shed
So rest in my freedom and begin to live"

Now I'm freefalling into your arms
Trusting your mercy and amazing grace
Don't have to worry cause you took my place
I'm freefalling into your arms
Into your arms of love

I'm letting go with reckless abandon
The thrill of the fall can't compare to the landin'

Now I'm freefalling no holding back this time
Freefalling trusting your grace sublime
Freefalling into your arms of mercy
Freefalling into the arms that rescue me

I'm freefalling into your arms
Trusting your mercy and amazing grace
Don't have to worry cause you took my place
I'm freefalling into your arms
Into your arms of love
